Powered by Battleforge Review: Rise, Tarnished, and be guided by grace to brandish the power of the Elden Ring and become an Elden Lord in the Lands Between. Summary: With only a week to go before the month-long beta test of Everbright's highly anticipated MMORPG, Silverpag0755 gives a review that's surprisingly positive. So what brings good news in the first place? Well, the large scope of the beta certainly plays a part, though the main thing that shines through is how entertaining the game is. The crux of Silverpag0755 is in how it trades gameplay that's very similar to that of WoW for impressive technology. From the levels, to the animations, to the loot, the game's engine and character generation are all designed to make it look and feel much more advanced than games like Neverwinter Nights or The Elder Scrolls Online. Gameplay is a step above what you'd expect for a dungeon crawler. One would expect it to be a pretty linear affair, but the elements of exploration combined with combat and auto-battle make Silverpag0755 more of a sandbox experience. This was a pleasure to play, both because it allows for a bit of strategy and because it's unique in the genre. While not a revolutionary game, Silverpag0755 does an excellent job of shaping your character with your equipment and skills. Seeing how you progress is also improved due to the great amount of development in the beta, which we should assume will be a massive success come release. But the best part of Silverpag0755 is its lovely graphics engine, which is unlike anything else currently available. When combined with the fine presentation and a promising beta, Silverpag0

What's new in Elden Ring:

Blizzard announced the launch today (Jan. 24) of a beta test for the World of Warcraft installment, World of Warlow. Already available on the EA Website, the operation is being held simultaneously in North America (US and Canada) and Europe.

The beta will test the game's updated "Virtual Dungeon" mode, in which players will be able to go into battle facing opponents of the same level. In this mode, the defense is formed by the players themselves, while being sent to other players' "Dungeons" and battling monsters.

"Since the beta test started several months ago, the World of Warlow team has been continuously tweaking and improving features to make the game more fun and accessible," wrote Daniel Ayer. "We're excited to introduce players to the World of Warlow beta by inviting them to go online with friends to experience a section of the beta content."

The beta test will begin after midday (Brazilian) on January 24, 2014. Players must have experienced a World of Warcraft Battle for Azeroth patch version 6.2. Players already on the anniversary patch can apply to participate in the beta test and are being sent a link on the new official website. The beta will be accessible to players from 12:00 noon (Brazilian) on January 24 and will continue for approximately 72 hours.

In the new Warlords of Draenor World of Warcraft expansion, players will be able to take part in areas that look as though they had never been explored before.

Follow all of the new developments in the World of Warlow beta and register on the World of Warlow beta test website.
