TRANSLATION OF EXTREMELY LARGE CAPITAL LETTERS OUTLOUDED IN RARE-HEARTED THRILLS AND FUNCTIONS From the dreary black area of the world where the shivering shadows of darkness dwell, an army of warriors rises in the darkness of the sky. The moment of awakening and the moment of strife had reached their culmination. Their continuous battle for the world has caused the entire world to split into the Northern and Southern Lands. The Northern Lands act as the base of the army, and the majority of the population. In the Northern Lands, merciless strife for the world and the subjugation of all living things, using the inhabitants as a power source, has become the norm. Surrounding the Northern Lands is the South Lands, where the privileged elite live. Finally, between the two is the Lands Between.

Q: Are questions on how to use CSS and HTML answered by StackOverflow? I have seen quite a few questions on how to use CSS on StackOverflow. I am curious: Are questions like these not duplicated? Are these questions answered if you ask them on StackOverflow? A: There is a difference between knowing how to use CSS and knowing how to solve an issue. Let's use this two examples: Solving a CSS question How to add background-color to .page__text? A good question has a good effort but it can be answered by anybody who knows how to use CSS. You can know how to use CSS just reading a book or online, but you can not expect the person to solve the issue he is not specialized on that area. Solving a HTML question How to add background-color to .page__text? CSS and HTML together? In this case you have to answer the question not only with CSS but also with HTML and I think this is something that you can expect from a Stack

Overflow user since in order to ask a question you have to know HTML. On Stack Overflow you are not allowed to tell the person to replace a span by a div because he said CSS and HTML are not related. There is only one way to go, which is to solve the issue and to do that he has to do something with HTML. Please note that Stack Overflow is not a blog, it's only a Q&A site. So that's the difference between the two
