How to get response code from a selenium test I am trying to get response code from a web page in selenium test. I have tried following code. response.implicitly_wait(15) response = browser.get("") print response.status_code output: 400 I have also tried using get_response_header function to get status code. However, both of the methods seems to retrieve different value. How can I make sure that I get the correct response code, if I am using both methods? A: Selenium uses "non-blocking" browser methods which are asynchronous so its hard to know when the response arrives in the time in which you try to read it. This is why the status code is not what you expect. You can make the get call synchronous but it will block the thread and the response won't arrive. browser.get("", timeout=5) Calcitonin gene-related peptide inhibits the uptake of serotonin by isolated cerebrovascular smooth muscle cells: role of serotonin transporters. Previous studies have shown that calcitonin gene-related peptide (CGRP) inhibits the vasoconstrictor effect of 5-hydroxytryptamine (5-HT) via the high-affinity receptor in isolated guinea pig cerebral arteries. In the present study, the effect of CGRP on the uptake of [3H]5-HT by isolated cerebral arterial smooth muscle cells was investigated. Uptake of 5-HT was concentration-dependent and saturable. Uptake was significantly greater in cells
